

WOMEN RIVALS TO MEET AT DINNER

Mrs. Upton and Mrs. Blair Accept Invitations to Address City Club in Washington

PEACE KEYNOTE AT HAGUE

Washington, Nov. 17.—The theory that women in politics are backing issues rather than practice has been borne out again by events since the election. The two women chiefs of the rival political parties, Mrs. Upton and Mrs. Blair, head of women's activities in the Republican and Democratic national party organizations, respectively, have been invited and accepted places as guests of honor and principal speakers at an anniversary dinner of the Women's City Club here tomorrow evening.

Can any one mention a similar occasion where John T. Adams, chairman of the Republican National Committee, and Cordell Hull, chairman of the Democratic National Committee, were guests of honor and principal speakers at any function? Or can any one conceive of an organization of men having the temerity to invite the heads of the rival parties together?

Rival Women Leaders Meet at Dinner

Yet women's organizations interested in politics have made a practice of that sort of thing, and there has been no more striking example than the dinner of the National Consumers' League a few days ago. Only two days after the election, they threw the rival camps into a hubbub, Mrs. Upton and Mrs. Blair were sitting smiling at each other, one on each side of Mrs. Florence Kelley, who presided at the dinner.

The subject which speakers had been asked to treat was a proposed child-labor-law amendment to the Constitution to meet the situation created by the decision of the Supreme Court against the Federal Child Labor Law. Both Mrs. Blair and Mrs. Upton, speaking as women chiefs of the Democratic and Republican Parties, were in favor of the proposal and declared they would do their utmost to see their Senators and Representatives voted for it.

British Woman Sends Platform

Representatives and Senators are speeding toward Washington for the opening of the special session of Congress Monday, but none is awaited with greater interest than Mrs. Winifred Nixon Hux, who went to Washington here and married one of her classmates. Alice Robertson is coming back, too, to sit in Congress until March 4, and there is a probability that we shall have three women if it is finally decided to allow Mrs. W. H. Felton, of Georgia, to occupy her seat for a day.

Whether British women for Parliament fared better than their American sister candidates in the elections is still a matter of doubt, but, nevertheless, their platforms are of interest. Mrs. Coombe Tennant, who was a member of the British delegation to the League of Nations Assembly in Geneva last September, has sent her campaign leaflet to the writer.

Received in Washington today, it is addressed to the "Electors of the Forest of Dean Division of the County of Gloucester and says:

"Follow-citizens: I am grateful to you for the friendly welcome which I have received throughout the division since I was adopted by the Liberals and the Conservative as the candidate.

Peace Plans Leads

"The election is now upon us, and in asking you to vote for me I wish to bring before you what I am standing for.

"First, Peace and such disarmament as is consistent with national safety based upon an all-inclusive League of Nations.

"Second, Co-operation between capital and labor.

"Third, Freedom and equality. I do not believe that we should be happy under a cast-iron Socialist state and would rather give a fair chance to every individual to make the most of his or her life.

"Fourth, Trade unionism directed to securing the industrial interests of the workers and not weakened by exploitation for the benefit of any political party.

"Fifth, Political and legal equality for men and women.

"Sixth, Reform of the rating of agricultural land.

"Seventh, Reform of the existing regulations regarding old age pensions.

"Eighth, Such economy in government departments as will not impair their working efficiency.

"Ninth, Fair play all around for the ex-service man, from the economic disaster which the existing settlement has brought upon them all."

"The conference of women to discuss a new peace" will meet at The Hague from December 7 to 9.

NEW PEACE CONFERENCE SOUGHT

On the eve of sailing tomorrow for The Hague, where she will preside at a women's international conference, Miss Jane Addams gave an announcement that the women's plans have been given out through the headquarters of her organization.

"The burden of resolutions now being set upon by the twenty-one national sections of the Women's International League for Peace and Freedom is to urge the immediate summoning of a world congress of all the powers to discuss a new peace," says Miss Addams.

"The members of the International Executive Board, who recently met in Europe, have called this an emergency conference because they see utter despair coming upon the nations of Europe, which are helpless to disentangle themselves from the economic disaster which the existing settlement has brought upon them all."

"The conference of women to discuss a new peace" will meet at The Hague from December 7 to 9.

POLICEMAN IS DISMISSED

Sergeant Accused of Being Drunk, Mother Pleads for Another

John Kane, a sergeant of police attached to the Fourth and Race street station, was dismissed yesterday by the Civil Service Commission sitting as a Trial Board, on a charge of being drunk when on duty.

It was said that the last three months eleven out of every twelve men called to trial have been charged with drunk cases. Twenty men have been discharged the last two months for the same offense and more than 200 have been fined.

Sergeant Kane's record shows he has been before the Police Board eleven times on the same charge.

The mother of Walter P. Wolfe, of the sixty-fifth street and Woodland streets, wrote to the commission for getting drunk, but added that she was sorry she wasn't strong enough to give him a good spanking.

Wolfe's case was held under advisement. The others were fined from five to ten dollars.
